FERNANDO GARCÍA BALLESTEROS

Fernando García Ballesteros was born in Barcelona. He has a degree in Pharmacy and a degree in English Studies. He is the author of the historical-noirs, El crimen del Liceo (2020), Muerte en el Laberinto (2021) and La ciudad y el perdón (2022) for which he received the Montserrat Roig writing grant. All of them are set in Barcelona in the early 20th century. La luz mas cruel is his most recent novel.

"I have to admit that both the novel and the author have been a discovery for me. It is not at all easy in a rather short thriller to convey depth and make the reader empathize with the protagonists and the author achieves this practically from the beginning. I also thought I was going to read a novel with a plot that was too simple, with a simple resolution and probably very predictable; however, nothing like that. I had no idea who was behind it all until the writer made it obvious.

A fantastic setting that perfectly recreates that literary gothic and dark Barcelona of the early twentieth century, where no one seems to be what they appear to be and where the female figure and her freedom is still a mirage in society. An entertaining and addictive reading to devour with eagerness."

La luz más cruel

Under The Harsh Light

A fascinating historical thriller in which the search for the purest beauty is confused with evil and the young photographer Clara discovers that only the cruelest light can expose it.

Beauty can be terrible, dark and strange.

Barcelona, early 20th century. A series of bodies of young, attractive men appear in the city's port, all shot in the chest. During the autopsy, Elías Sunyer, a young forensic surgeon, discovers that the shots are post mortem, the bodies contain traces of ether and opium and show signs of having been abused.

Against the wishes of her distinguished family of portrait photographers, Clara Prats, a police collaborator, is in charge of the crime scene photographs because she has the necessary expertise to work in adverse lighting conditions. To her surprise, she discovers that she knows the victims, as she also takes photographs for the police files in the Anthropometric Office. And what at first appears to be a coincidence begins to look suspicious.

Manuel Martín Prieto is the commissioner of district V and fears that the crimes will attract too much attention of the press and that his business dealings in the port will be discovered. After investigating the city's underworld and finding nothing, he begins to take Clara's fears into consideration.

A wealthy lawyer Carlos Monfort then offers Clara a new job helping out in the photography workshop of the inmates of the Nueva Betlem Sanatorium, a modern establishment that at first seems more like a spa than a typical mental institution. The young photographer then discovers that in order to save a life she will be forced to portray cruelty in the most terrible way possible.

La luz más cruel is a fascinating journey across a city of contrasts, where cabarets coexist with luxurious social clubs and the most innovative advances of the century the most absolute misery with the sophisticated whims of the bourgeoisie, mental illness and marine tattoos with lace and leather gloves. And where evil always looms and struggles to come to light.

«Francisco Bescós traps you in a macabre game that you can't get out of. La Ronda is a formidable novel.»

Santiago Díaz, writer

«La Ronda is a sweeping journey into the depths of evil. You will no longer walk the ground of your city with the same innocence.»

Ibon Martín, writer

«A good example of a modern crime novel, very Madrid and very international. La Ronda is as fast-paced as the urban motorway on which it takes place.»

Eduardo Laporte / Coverture

«In this world there are two types of authors: those who make literature even on the shopping list, and those who don't. Paco Bescós is one of the first.»

Jesús Lens / Ideal de Granada

«A very noir novel, with a narrative of a thriller, which is also - and this is not easy nowadays - very original.»

La Ronda

The Beltway

Since the beginning of the year the bodies of several mysteriously executed people have been discovered in Madrid. They seem to be victims chosen at random, as they have been found in remote parts of the capital. However, there are two investigators from different police stations who are determined to follow up, each one on their own, the few clues available. They are Inspector Dulce O'Rourke, with an explosive personality but insecure in her love life, and Inspector Juan Luis Seito, who appears to be a quiet man but is capable of moving heaven and earth if he uncovers an important case. When they come to the conclusion that an elite mercenary is prowling the streets of the city, all the alarms go off. This is someone with a lot of experience, used to killing with impunity. Something is going on. Something extremely complicated. And also extremely serious. Something that no one, anywhere in the world, has detected so far.

«What a story! An electrifying thriller that has given me a few heart-stopping days. What a cocktail of emotions. It takes on a strong commitment to offer quality entertainment.»

Moritz García / Moon Magazine

«Francisco Bescós has created a novel that reinvents the genre a little, providing it with new ingredients with which to confront the readers and from which he comes out successful and strengthened.»

Manuel Acosta / Cartagena Negra

«The author manages to make even the most trivial things interesting and the most implausible things are actually a covert springboard to relaunch the suspense to a higher level.»

Mr. Tom / Polar Reviews

«La Ronda is a crime novel with a plot formed in concentric circles. Once one is completed, a larger one appears. Each move forward is followed by a new mystery. Each discovery leads to a new mystery.»

Jordi Valero / Interrobang

«The beautiful city of San Sebastián, beset by strong gale and murders, is about to experience a hellish night. Highly disturbing.»

Carmen Mola, Writer

«During a stormy night, Peru Cámara leads us through the city of San Sebastián in search of a notorious killer. Very entertaining.»

Santiago Díaz, Writer

«In addition to the truly plausible crime plot, there is the undoubted merit of turning the beautiful and peaceful city of San Sebastián into an apocalyptic scene of crime, sea storms and bloodshed.»

Iñaki Ezkerra, El Correo

«Galerna, Peru Cámara's debut novel is the kind that Hollywood producers would fight over.»

Xavi Ayen, La Vanguardia

«Reminiscent of the great masters of Scandinavian noir, such as Jo Nesbo and Stieg Larsson.»

Cordelia

Cordelia

An experienced mountaineer died in a snow storm.
A young girl who disappeared decades ago.
Evil awakens again.

The body of a mountaineer appears in the San Miguel sanctuary, in the Aralar mountain range (Navarre). Everything seems to indicate that Cordelia, the destructive storm, was to blame for her death. But when the forensic scientist Aitor Intxaurreaga goes to the scene, he discovers something strange about the woman's body. Her death may not have been accidental. Why did she go to the mountains despite Cordelia's possible risks? What did she do the moments before she died? Together with a veteran Ertzaintza inspector Jaime Otamendi and a marine biologist Eva San Pedro, Aitor will try to make headway against the clock in a case that will lead them to the Euskadi High Performance Centre and the dubious methods of its director. But in a setback, the investigation will take them back to a tragic accident in the past: the disappearance of a young woman from Barakaldo in the 1983 floods. Just a few days before the great sports gala in San Sebastian, none of them expect that finding the truth will open the door to a dark and elusive force that has remained hidden for so many years. Evil will reawaken.

Galerna

The Gale

The hidden face of the beautiful city of San Sebastián, political corruption, violence and sexual abuse. A hidden reality that might give unsuspected people enough motives for killer action.

A sudden and violent storm with strong bursts of wind, short but torrential rain, thunder and lightning lashes the area of the Cantabrian Sea and the Bay of Biscay. The pathologist, Aitor Intxaurreaga returns home and exhausted, slumps onto the sofa. The idea of spending a weekend of endless paperwork ruins the atmosphere of the Friday night. After almost six months of internship, he already knows that passing the public examination has not been his last obstacle. Outside, the city of San Sebastián is swamped with a storm, not experienced in living memory. The sound of the telephone startles him: the police require his services in Peine del Viento. They have found a dead body and all the other pathologists are on vacation. The weather conditions and the fact that he does not have the support of his experienced colleagues make his task extremely difficult. The Basque Police have no doubts: the corpse does not present signs of violence other than those provoked by the sea waves hitting the rocks. After a preliminary examination, Aitor admits that it appears to be an accidental death by asphyxia. The policemen want to remove the body and leave, hoping to close the case quickly. But Aitor wants to do his job thoroughly and not miss even the slightest detail.

La espía de cristal

The Crystal Spy

Talbe Shala is not just one more victim of the last war in the Balkans. She is a lover with a frozen soul. An interpreter for the United Nations. A mother made of silences. An acclaimed Albano-Kosovar journalist. A spy. This disturbing story begins with a strange disappearance of Taibe in Pristina, her native town, in October 2019.

Manu Pancorbo, alias Panco, an old love of Taibe's and a Spanish war reporter, will embark on his own particular odyssey to find out the reasons for the disappearance of the woman he has never forgotten. He will do so accompanied by his loyal companion in armed conflicts, Olga Balcells, a photographer who has amassed international recognition, death of the loved ones and ghosts from which she cannot free herself.

La espía de cristal is a dark and emotive literature, an agonizing account of what we thought was the last war in Europe. Between the dilemmas of intelligence services and the final search for the truth, there is also room for a love story as ambiguous as it is true.

El chico de las bobinas

The Boy with the Film Reels

A city under constant threat where the most important thing is to learn how to survive. A murder that will reveal a secret meant to be never discovered.

Barcelona, 1945. Nil Roig is a young boy who spends the days on his bicycle, carrying old film reels from one cinema to another and dreaming that one day he will be a projectionist in one of those movie theatres. On the day of his thirteenth birthday he is a witness of a crime committed on the staircase of his house. While the murderer escapes after having threatened him with death if he does not keep his mouth shut, the dying man gives him a mysterious picture card of a film actor from the pre-war times. The object searched for and desired by the low-keyed figures of an ex Gestapo commander and a Francoist police officer. The fact that the man while giving the card to Nil, whispers the name of David, the boy's father, who disappeared on the day when the city was taken over by the victorious army will prompt him to uncover a mystery of the past for which he will pay a high price.

«A historical novel that inclines as much towards the noir as to the spy novel.» ABC Cultura

«A homage to the cinema, the shelter of the post-war time.» La Sexta

«This is one of the novels which will be much talked about this year.» El Ideal de Granada

«A magnificent homage to a vanished era of the cinema.» El Periódico de Catalunya

A GREAT EPIC, A VANISHED CIVILISATION. THE LEAST KNOWN EPISODE IN THE HISTORY OF SPAIN

By the award-winning author of THE GOOD FATHER, which captivated over 130,000 readers.

“It is better to die with dignity than to live enslaved”.

First century BC. After the mutiny on the ship in which they were being transported by the Romans, eighty African prisoners of war and their wives are swept by the currents to the island of Tenerife. For 1,500 years, their descendants created a civilisation there, isolated from the rest of the world, until the nine kingdoms that make up the Guanche territory became the target of the Catholic Monarchs. Blood will be spilled from north to south of the island in this great adventure that retraces betrayals, sacrifices and forbidden passions to tell the story of a warrior lineage led by the mencey Bencomo, king of kings, who fought to the end for his freedom. Santiago Díaz presents an extraordinary account, never before told, of the Guanche resistance to the Crown of Castile, but also an astonishing chronicle of the Spain of the time through the eyes of a slave in search of her origins, the story of an impossible love and the portrait of a civilisation full of mysteries that eventually vanished forever.

‘Brilliant. I liked it very much, so much that I would have loved to have written it myself.’ Carmen Mola

‘After the success of The Good Father, he returns with The Other Girls. Two heart-stopping thrillers.’ Juan Carlos Galindo, El País

El buen padre

The Good Father

Indira Ramos Series 1

An old man turns himself in to the police, saying that he has abducted three persons: a judge, a lawyer and a young escort girl who was a witness in the court case of his son, accused of killing his wife. Convinced that the three of them were bribed to convict his son, he tells the police that they will all be left to die at a week's intervals if the real killers of his daughter-in-law are not detained.

Inspector Indira Ramos and her team will head the investigation into the abductees. They will try to find their whereabouts before the deadline given by the old man and then reopen the case of his daughter-in-law's murder... and before long they will discover that nothing is as clear as it seemed at the beginning.

Las otras niñas

The Other Girls

Indira Ramos Series 2

Thirty years ago a brutal murder shocked Spanish public. The killer was never captured. Until now. Inspector Indira Ramos has spent the last three years on unpaid leave in her native Extremadura. Apart from her family, nobody knows that she has given birth to a girl, Alba, the matter kept secret from deputy inspector Iván Moreno, the father of her daughter. When in December 2022 the time comes to rejoin the staff of the police station in Madrid, she feels demotivated and is ready to give up her job. She is unable to face Iván whom she blames for the death of her friend, Dani. Neither of them still know that they will have to solve the biggest criminal brain teaser in the history of modern Spain: at a petrol station there were found the fingerprints of the one who has been for years the most wanted man in the country. As the brutal killing is now prescriptive, there is no reason for the police to detain the main suspect of the crime who now lives under an assumed identity. But Inspector Ramos is convinced that a killer will always commit another murder. She only needs to find the crime for which he will not go unpunished.

Indira

Indira

Indira Ramos Series 3

For inspector Indira Ramos it has been an extremely eventful year. She has hunted down a monster everybody gave up for dead, has lost one of her best officers in an ill-fated accident and has had to choose between the two men in her life. But when everything seemed to be back to normal and she was contemplating a quieter time ahead, the circumstances dictated that the matters be more complicated than ever. Her team is now made up of detective sergeant María Ortega, the police officer Lucía Navarro, now even more reserved after her therapy and of Jotadé, a police officer of Rom descent, famed for the unorthodox albeit effective approach who will turn the life of his companions upside down. They will have to investigate the case of several bodies found on a construction plot that seem to be connected with a mysterious trip made in the past. Meanwhile, inspector Ramos and inspector Moreno find out in the worst manner possible that an old enemy has for years been harbouring a grudge against them and is now ready to strike where it most hurts. Indira and Iván will have to work together to face a case that will change their life and will unite or separate them forever.

Una pregunta para Elena

A Question for Elena

After the success of her first novel El prodigio de las migas de pan, the author returns with a novel Una pregunta para Elena about the lives of a whole generation of women in the 1950s, set in Barcelona and featuring the most famous and popular sentimental radio programme of the time, Elena Francis's Radio Office.

Barcelona, May 1952. The city is buzzing with preparations for the XXV Eucharistic Congress, an imposing celebration of the Catholic faith that aims to breathe hope into a country broken by the misery of the post-war period. The radio, synonymous with modernity, enchants women all over the country with a space where they are the protagonists: the consulting room of doctor Elena Francis. Berta, a 21-year-old orphan adopted by Eleonora and Sebastián, who has grown up with their daughter Ramona, arrives in the city with her family to attend the Congress. All three women come from a village in Aragon and are fervent supporters of the radio counsellor. All three hope to meet the mythical doctor Francis so that she will guide them to solving a personal problem they do not share with anyone and on which the future of each of them depends. They have never suspected the deception hidden behind that voice that, on the pretext of helping them, subjugates them. They stay at the house of Úrsula, Eleonora's cousin and scriptwriter of the programme they mythologise, and meet her daughter, Gabriela, who is the programme's lector. The moment they set foot in the radio studio, Berta's life is turned upside down: she dares to dream of being part of that world that takes her away from misery and brings her closer to a kind of life forbidden for a poor girl from a small village. Their dreams of freedom clash in a society where women's role is reduced to the home.

El prodigio de las migas de pan

The Prodigy of the Morsels of Bread

El prodigio de las migas de pan* is an intriguing story with historical background and describes the times of fundamental changes which connect us to our modern times. The novel is a voyage towards freedom, a reflection on maternity and a portrait of two women, Maria Montessori and her assistant Claudia Caralt who dared to defend their intellect and their dreams.

Rome, 1900. A big, shabby room in a shelter for the poor and the homeless is full of little boys, milling about without any control, often unable even to utter a sound. They are either disabled or abandoned and their supervisors treat them as if they were animals. Suddenly, a boy begins to play with morsels of bread. That attracts the attention of a doctor who has been observing the children and making notes about everything occurring in the room. She is accompanied by a young helper, eager to learn. This is how the great adventure of Maria Montessori and Claudia Caralt begins. Claudia was born in Spain but fate took her to Rome when she was nineteen and where she found a job in a shelter and met a woman who will change her life. From that moment she will follow Doctor Montessori in her efforts to reform the education, will witness the creation of a new teaching method and will stand by her in the most difficult moments in her life. For three decades, they will defy the conventions of the times by advancing a powerful, stimulating and innovative idea: only through education can the world be changed. Dealing with criminals involved in child trade, confronting romantic disenchantments and countering terrible threats will have them travelling from Rome to London to San Francisco and to Barcelona.

ANTONIO GUISADO

Antonio Guisado was born in Seville (1973) where he lives and worked all his life in different commercial sectors until 2012 when he decided to focus all his efforts on one of his passions, the sea. He defines himself as self-taught, apprentice of everything, master of nothing. A sailmaker by profession, in 2020 he self-publishes his first novel, giving space to writing, his other passion ever since he showed his first stories to a professor in the secondary school. Encouraged and surprised by good reception, in 2021 he decides to find a publishing house for his second novel, La Muñeca, a literary thriller, published by Siruela Ediciones in 2022, and El demonio de Laplace was out in 2024 .

«The Doll perfectly balances three genres that respect each other so much that they rarely touch each other in a single work, let alone intermingle. This is the boldness of Guisado, who is not afraid to endow his first foray into literature with an admirable stylistic tension, with a good dose of horror, a thriller and the most classic detective story to keep the reader in suspense from beginning to end.»

Diario16

«The Doll is a must-read novel for lovers of the thriller genre. Reminiscent of Stephen King's It, The Doll does not disappoint at the beginning, nor in the middle or the denouement, absorbing elements of the formula that helped Carmen Mola to win the Planeta Award, but with enough personality to bring the plot, the action, the adventure, the fun and the delight to the south, to Rota.»

El demonio de Laplace

The Laplace Demon

Are we masters of our destiny? A dark and disturbing thriller about free will. Horror and crime genre combined in an addictive novel in the vein of John Connolly.

When, like the gentle drops that anticipate the fury of the storm, the corpses of several slaughtered cats begin to litter the city of Seville, two detectives brought out of their tranquillity by the macabre events will find themselves suddenly confronted by a series of strange events and, above all, by a question of the ever-elusive nature.

From Aristotle to Einstein, from Calderón de la Barca to Simon Laplace, many people over the centuries have tried to answer one of the greatest questions in the history of mankind: is man really free or is there a path that we walk along without knowing it? In this dark and disturbing thriller about free will, some answers are offered, as valid as any others, above all, many disturbing questions are thrown like shadow darts.

La muñeca

The Doll

When Ana asked Daniel's help to throw her doll into the new municipal rubbish dump, she did not know that she would also throw away her childhood, that of her friends and also a part of life of every one of them. She did not know in the slightest imagine she would dump the future of her life into abyss as humid as it was dark.

A quarter of the century later during urbanistic developments in the town some corpses appear in the old dumping site which will alter the present and awaken a sleeping past that never vanished and now stretches its limbs to claim a debt.

A costal town of the peninsular south where the dead reclaim the names that are their due, the living try to forget the past and to hide the disturbing truth and where a police inspector with a tarnished past wants to redeem past mistakes by retracing twenty five years of darkness in search of truth.

La Babilonia, 1580

The Babylon, 1580

AFTER 1793 AND THE BEAST ARRIVES THE GREAT NOVEL THAT REMODELS THE NOIR GENRE AND THE HISTORICAL NOVEL. A MONUMENTAL THRILLER SET IN SEVILLE IN 1580 AND A SECRET THAT COULD CHANGE THE COURSE OF HISTORY.

Seville, 1580. The city has become the main port for trade to the Indies and, therefore, the commercial capital of the Occident. His Majesty's Fleet of the Indies is about to set sail. The skin torn from a woman's face and her red hair appear attached like a macabre disguise on the figurehead of the Capitana, the warship that leads the fleet. In the Arenal, in an area enclosed by high walls in the centre of a labyrinth of streets there is La Babilonia, the most sought-after brothel in the whole city. A few metres further on, the convent of the Discalced Carmelites founded by Teresa de Jesús. Behind these walls live the protagonists of this story: Damiana, a prostitute of renown, and Sister Catalina. The two friends that grew up together until life abruptly separated them will have to find out who murdered the redhead so brutally and why. To do so, they will put their lives in danger and the crown's best kept secret, a mysterious map carved in wood that could change the course of history.

Susana Martín Gijón, a veteran of the noir genre and author of the successful Camino Vargas series, with more than sixty thousand copies sold, surprises us with a historical thriller based on the recent investigation, exciting and revealing, that could change the whole story about the discovery of America, with echoes of the sensory reading experience of Süskind's Perfume and the dizzying and hypnotic plot of 1793 by Niklas Natt och Dag.

El Esplendor

The Splendor

César and Rebeca are a couple of swindlers in their late twenties. He controls drugs and women in a luxury hotel in Madrid; she obtains data on the deceased without heirs and searches for relatives who can collect the inheritance in exchange for a commission.

Rebeca has just returned from a trip that promises huge profits but hides grave dangers on a remote island. The next morning César finds her in the living room and notices that her eyes are open, but she is unresponsive. Her body is twisted in an unimaginable position. The doctors discover some wounds on her body, and that she has had sexual relations. Other options ruled out, the diagnosis is post-traumatic stress disorder.

César analyses the trip she made and, in doing so, realises that he knows even less than he thought: in Rebeca's initial research into a couple in Vendrell, he discovers that they have only been in that place for three years and that they may have had a daughter on Guernsey, one of the Channel Islands. It is on that island that Rebeca has been on her last trip, just before the crisis. Determined to find out what happened there, he travels to the island and tries to reconstruct the steps Rebeca took, who she got involved with, what could have happened to her. That investigation will bring him into contact with the world of luxury in Saint Peter Port, the economic centre of the island, and with Darcy, a lawyer who worked for the couple whose trail Rebeca was following. He reveals to César, that the elderly couple were in fact living in Spain under false identities. Their real names are Eduard Groizard and Mary Ann, owners of a huge company called Citadelle Trust Services, based on another Channel Island, Alderney. The key to everything that has happened may lie with Virginia Groizard, the daughter of the deceased couple, who lives in a remarkable fortress on Alderney, of the same name as her parents' company: Citadelle.

El Esplendor is a mystery novel, a thriller that portrays identities, and alternates the points of view of César and Rebeca, with influences of Eyes Wide Shut or Millennium and certain influences from Dracula. The plot that will take us through such areas as the attempts to reach Virginia Groizard, an almost spectral character; the doubts of César, who does not know if Rebeca betrayed him with another man or if she had a really traumatic experience; the fortunes of the Groizard family and their true identity; the private parties held in their castle. And also the origins of Citadelle, the fortress the family inhabited in Alderney, which are linked with the island's past and the years of the Nazi occupation when this place was known as Adolf Island and was a concentration camp.

La Bestia

The Beast

PLANETA BOOK AWARD 2021

Pulling together all the threads of a perfect thriller, Carmen Mola intricately weaves a gripping, quick-paced and brutal novel of inferno and darkness. It is 1834 and the inhabitants of Madrid, already ravaged by an epidemic of cholera, must confront a terrifying beast that is killing girls from the lowest social class. From there a lurid work of fiction emerges, an engrossing narrative that takes readers by storm.

It's the summer of 1834 and Madrid is trying to survive a devastating epidemic of cholera which has already wreaked damage in many parts of Europe. Disease and death are commonplace. The city, on the brink of collapse, wants to open up beyond the surrounding wall. Everybody lives in terror of the disease but in the slums around the Wall, where the poorest have set up makeshift, lean-to homes, something much more horrifying is going on. Dismembered bodies of girls are showing up and nobody ever claims them. Rumor has it that the perpetrator is a Beast, a being that nobody has seen but everybody fears.

Terrible fear permeates these slums; girls, especially, are afraid of falling victim to a monster who nobody seems to have any interest in hunting down. Nobody with the exception of Diego, a freelance journalist who writes about the discovered bodies, ignoring the warnings of Donoso, a one-eyed policeman and also his friend and drinking buddy.

When little Clara disappears, her sister Lucía will do everything possible to find her alive. The three of the them – Diego, Donoso and Lucía – start a frenetic countdown to pick up her trail. In their search they come across friar Braulio, a guerrilla monk, and find a mysterious gold ring which everybody wants and for which some are willing to kill. They also discover that behind the evil and savage Beast there is something so incredible and powerful none of them could even imagine.

El jardín de las mujeres Verelli

The Garden of the Verellis

A family of absent men and courageous women. A legacy which contains valuable lessons. An opportunity for a new start. A voyage in search of the simplest way of living.

Gianna has been living with her grandmother in the back room of La Cucina dei Fiori, an Italian Deli in Barcelona. She knows nothing of her family's past. But on the night when her grandmother dies, she finds among her things the key to a windmill situated in a small village in the north of Italy and a diary of her great grandmother, Anice, with missing pages. When her life seems to fall apart, Gianna finds in the history of her great grandmother the inspiration to start again and sets out for Italy in search of her roots. Through this journey we get to know Anice, her almost magical relation with nature, the story of her love disrupted by the outbreak of the Great War and the mysterious reasons why she had to abandon everything. But at the same time, we accompany Gianna in the passage of personal rediscovery and of what really is important in life: love, friendship and a place to call home.

«Montero's writing is warm and direct, a feel-good read. I have to admit that I love landscape novels, and in this one the reader will enjoy the Italian and Spanish history, culture and beautiful places where magic and love can change everything.»

«Carla Montero delivers a moving and irresistible story with exceptionally well-depicted and unforgettable characters where women play a special role in choosing their own way to find happiness and freedom with integrity, courage and selflessness.»

Greta is a renowned hunter of rare and valuable books, although her popularity has slumped due to the disappearance of a first edition of Borges that she was about to appraise. Weighed down by debts and the mistrust of those close to her, she accepts an unusual assignment: to find the library of the Fritz-Briones family, lost during the Second World War.

From Madrid to Cadiz, passing through Rome, Wroclaw and Berlin, and accompanied by a group of most peculiar characters, Greta will have to use all her ingenuity to find the stolen library. However, she soon discovers that she is not the only one who is after this collection and that there is much more to this affair than meets the eye.

It will be Berlin, where she will discover that the Nazis carried out the greatest book theft in history. She will also realize that someone is murdering bibliophiles, booksellers and collectors all over the world in an attempt to reconstruct the mythical Library of the Jewish Community of Rome, which was looted and hidden by the Third Reich.

Greta won't be able to resist this twist in the investigation – what book lover would ignore the trail of the legendary collection? Little does it matter that her life may be in danger; what she doesn't know is that this adventure will lead her to discover a truth about herself that she may not be prepared for.

El Gran Rojo

The Great Red

A fast-paced crime novel set in the city of Frankfurt and its streets of the Red Light District, the injection sites and shit coffee. The first installment of the Manhattan Project protagonised by the Spanish private investigator Mascarell

Mascarell is the person you turn to when no other detective in the whole city wants to investigate a case you have to commission. Used to moving around in the red district, in supervised injection sites and some of the most foul-smelling hovels in Frankfurt, his reputation among all the weirdos in the neighbourhood grows unceasingly. This time, however, the task he is about to take on is most unusual and too well-paid to be legal. Even so, he accepts it. During the investigation he will meet Ayala, a young girl, who wants to find out the truth about the death of her brother and untangle the murky business he was implicated in before he died.

The case will take them to the other side of Frankfurt, a European Manhattan, and show them from close up the beast that lives in the shade of the skyscrapers. Everybody knows too well who The Great Red is and what he is capable of, to make sure that nothing and nobody threatens the good health condition of the business he is conducting.

This forces Dani to flee from her to a decaying village in the Asturian mining basin, the cradle of his mother's roots. A town divided between those who wish to leave and sell the land and those who wish to stay and honor her memory, condemned by a curse buried in the bowels of the mine. And while Dani seeks to settle down, part of the town rejects his presence, fearful that he will revive that buried terror. A specter, a man, a monster; none of the three and all at the same time, threatening to return and devastate all those who dwell in that wild land.

Their arrival at the House of Poppies is a terrible shock to Flora: Maya's features are the very image of young Aurora, her daughter. Elisa finds a job in a hotel in Albarracín and the two stay in the house. There Maya meets Yago, a big, well-built man in his fifties, who often comes to work in the garden and to help Flora. Yago produces a strange sensation and makes Maya fearful, but her grandmother always defends him. Maya gradually adapts to life in the countryside and, above all, begins to understand her grandmother and the two women who live with her: Silvia, an older woman who works with dried flowers, and Olga, who has only been in the house for a year and a half after suffering miscarriage shortly before delivery. Everything changes when, unexpectedly, Flora suffers a stroke and dies. Everyone is devastated, especially Maya, who had managed to get emotionally close to her grandmother. Maya finds an old mobile phone hidden in the attic that rings incessantly and has only one number in its phonebook. When Maya picks it up, a woman's voice asks her why she hasn't called before. Nobody knows who it is, but days later they are all surprised when Aurora enters the house. Twenty years have passed and her hair is white, and she retains her spectral whiteness. She has come with Yago and tells them that during these years she has lived with him in the Casa de las Sabinas, lost in the woodland. She confesses that it was her who unintentionally killed Blanca when she threw a stone at her in anger at a malicious comment made by her friend, and that her mother buried her under the fig tree to protect her. Since then, Aurora's life has been filled with remorse and now she wants to turn herself in to the police and serve the sentence. But nothing is as it seems. The lives of Elisa, Maya, Aurora, Olga and Silvia have only just become more complicated under the roof of the House of Poppies.

Villa Melania

Zaragoza, the 6th of January 2019. Camila Oliver, an orphan and a niece of Melania to whom she bears a striking resemblance, is throwing a party in the mansion which she inherited less than a year before. Nineteen minutes before midnight the body of Camila falls from the enclosed balcony of the tower, though in this case there appears a suicide note with the body.

Young Cloe, a sister of Camila on her father's side and also the heir to the Villa Melania, moves to the mansion in spite of the opposition of her mother, Paloma, an embittered and sinister woman. From that moment, the mansion and its former owner become Cloe's obsession.

«Well written, good characters, and a great ending. It is common for tragic stories to attract us. Perhaps we are all somewhat cracked inside, because life is full of mishaps that put it in danger. It may be that most of us hide a locked room inside, and we keep that key hidden so that no one can enter.» Annikaentrelibros

«Family sagas like Villa Melania are always a good omen for good and comforting novels; without a doubt the elegance and perfect narration make this book one of the best discoveries of this year. A perfect book to delve into the mysteries of the mind and family ties but from a somewhat gothic and intense point of view.» Laura Rodríguez Durán, Revista FanFan.es

«Desirée Ruiz's writing is notable for its careful and beautiful prose, with a great capacity for psychological introspection and for the creation of atmospheres. She exhibits her own style, original, evocative and poetic which turns into sinister when the passages require it.» El Mundo

«In Desirée Ruiz's third novel, a family house takes the undisputed leading role in a plot in which mysteries and death trap the reader.» El Periódico Mediterráneo

Lo que oculta la tierra

What the Earth Hides

Daniel Caicoya is a civil guard in the mining area near Oviedo. He and his uncle, Paulino, a lieutenant in the headquarters, have not spoken to Matías, their brother and father, for ten years because their professional choice to become civil guards and not miners.

Daniel returns to his village because of the murder of Severino Gómez, a mysterious man with a bad reputation in the village, wealthy, suspected of having been collaborating with the Regime undercover in the mine and who also had an added problem: his son Ricardo. Ricardo was in charge of security at the time of a recent explosion that killed fourteen miners and he, in turn, had already been accused of being an exploiter and of causing deaths by coaxing the miners into working longer hours with bribes.

The general feeling of hatred seems to be the reason why El Cojo, a man in charge of pastures, found a horrifyingly murdered corpse. On his knees and the hands bound with a tape and shot in the back of the head, in the middle of a secondary road in the area. What doesn't quite add up is the ritualistic manner of death: the hands and tongue were cut off without much care, post mortem, and apart from the ammunition for the nine-barrelled long gun, neither the casing nor the gun were found. The only witness is an elderly disabled man from the village, who lives with his two brothers, also elderly and unmarried, whom they find in a state of shock and unable to communicate. It seems, as many remember, that under that road there is a thirty-metre-deep mine shaft which was filled with soil, and which was the mass grave of those disaffected with the fascist regime after the uprising and the Civil War.

Daniel has only just begun to pull the strings when some children find a human head in a plastic bag in a lake where he used to swim as a child and, shortly afterwards, a retired army general appears dead, headless, with the hands and the tongue of the first corpse in his hands. Daniel's instinct tells him to look far away and for that, who better than his own grandmother Elena, a nonagenarian, who suffered the repression and was only spared by the mercy of one of the guards. When it comes to light that many of Severino's real estate properties originated from deeds of blood, from forced cessions that ended with the death of the unfortunate people who accepted the deal, he is closer and closer to finding out who is performing such acts of revenge.
